OPENING EXERCISES OF THE SIXTH SEASON

The Opening Exercises of the sixth session of the Berkshire Music Center were held at three thirty Sunday afternoon, July fourth, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood . Dr. Lewis Perry presided for the Trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, welcomed the students and guests, and made some remarks about the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center . Dr. Koussevitzky, after introducing the members of the Faculty, made an address which is given on the following pages . After the address the members of the student body, conducted by Mr. Hugh Ross, sang Randall Thompson's "Alleluia" .

At the close of the Exercises, refreshments were served in the Tanglewood Gardens .

ADDRESS OF DR. KOUSSEVITZKY AT THE OPENING EXERCISES OF THE BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER

July 4, 1948

It is always a deep joy to welcome everyone of you - old timers as well as new comers - to Tanglewood.

It is also gratifying to realize that the Berkshire Music Center is steadily growing as an institution of permanent value. This is proved by the widening interest and support of the Friends of our Music Center, for which we thank its Chairman, Dr. Lewis Perry, and is especially made evident this summer by the contribution of the Hawthorne Cottage by such a prominent and nation-wide organization as the National Federation of Music Clubs. To the former President of the Federation and the initiator of this project, Mrs. Guy Patterson Gannett, who is responsible for bringing the historical cottage to life for the use of our Tanglewood family, - we express our warm appreciation and gratitude.

Mentioning the Tanglewood family brings to mind another heartening event in the past year: the founding of the Berkshire Music Center Alumni Association - a welcome sign of the enduring ties of Tanglewood and the growing nucleus of its past, present and future members.

Let me briefly speak here for all those to whom Tanglewood means more than a mere spot on the map of the Berkshire Hills. We have recently suffered a loss, which deeply affected and saddened our hearts: it is the passing of Mrs. Hepburn, who was born on this very soil, who had dreamed of music as a child on these very grounds and whose devotion for music in later years led her to offer Tanglewood as a sanctuary for the creation in America of a world center of music, culture and the arts. Her memory shall live among us as it shall forever live in Tanglewood.

On this opening day of our sixth season, once again we are ready for a full program of the Berkshire Music Center, to which our faculty has given much thought and in which we shall take active part. As in the past seasons, the measure of our intent and capacity to immerse ourselves in music will bear fresh evidence of the productive experience and results of our work. When preparing for our season and addressing you, my young friends, I think of you not as a group of young people of average student age, but as mentally and artistically mature, above the average. I am, therefore, speaking of music not in a limited and strictly professional sense, but in a universal aspect, which is in line with the concept of our Music Center. The fact that we live in an extraordinary age cannot be overlooked.

The physicist calls it the atomic age; the mystic sees in it the approach of apocalyptic times; the world-view of the musician must encompass both, - for the musician holds his head in the clouds, and his feet on the ground. His creative vision and inspiration carry him above and beyond his times; yet his work marks his epoch and leaves "foot-prints on the sands of time." In our eventful and disturbing age, we traverse a world of unrest, of changing values and crumbling frontiers. Within this year we witnessed the loss of independence of several countries; the expansion of power of others; the advent of a new state born of ancient roots in blood and strife; the slaying of one, who has truly been called the apostle of peace, by the hand of a fellow countryman. We further witnessed an act of moral injustice, committed against the creative freedom and genius in our own artistic realm. Shall we remain silent when art is attacked at its very roots and when abnormal pressure is allowed to take the place of truth.

We well know that art cannot be subjected to conditions of spiritual dependence: art cannot be dominated by external influences and crushed under the thumb of the mass. Who can judge the creative artist? Who has the temerity to condemn and morally persecute him, and lead him to surrender his personal independence and judgment? The sound criterion of a judge or critic of art should be both high and deep: a critic of art must not only possess high integrity and knowledge, but also a profound insight into the creative work and mind. He must strive to develop, within himself, the power of penetration and illuminating sensitivity, so that he can perceive the mystery of the creative state and process, and from that basic perception he will proceed to build up a constructive criticism. Narrow-mindedness, subjectivity of views and submission to ideals other than the pursuit of truth, have no place in constructive criticism and authoritative judgment of the Arts. The loss of freedom brought upon the creative artist by external negative forces, is equivalent to the loss of life and to spiritual strangulation. But let the artist be on guard against no lesser dangers caused by his inner lack of moral fortitude, - which can be fatal and suicidal. A creative act - when truly creative- is always a mystery. If a creative artist is governed by motives other than the urge to create - he lowers his moral standard and loses the most precious thing of all - his creative freedom.

This is especially true in music. If a composer falls to the lure of predominant material interests, he clips the wings of his spiritual flight and creativity. The work of a composer cannot be weighed down and defeated by material ends. His aims and vision impell him to create an ethical, pure and elevated world- a world in which man can recover dignity, moral courage and spiritual force. Beethoven described music as "the entrance into the higher world of knowledge which comprehends mankind but which mankind cannot comprehend." We, musicians, are initiated into this higher order of knowledge; we are deeply aware of the transcendent power of music. Not by an armor of steel shall we help to restore faith to man, but by the pure, untarnished metal of our art. We shall not promise bread, work and housing to crowds, for we are not invested with the power of the ageless great inquisitor. But we have other gifts to offer which we know to be of lasting value to man.

It is surprising and disturbing to note, how little faith is shown by present-day leaders of humanity in the creative and regenerating capacity of spiritual and cultural values. We read of millions of dollars assigned for the vast European Recovery Program, but all is to go for physical needs and none for the relief of the spiritual vacuum and cultural hunger of a sick mankind. Man indeed, has lost himself in the conflict with life: he is demoralized and stands on the verge of spiritual failure. The sickness of the human soul is revealed in many obvious ways, but more so in the hopelessness and meaninglessness of man's existence, and in the literary and philosophic trends of thought. America, the only country in our civilization spared the devastating results of the last War, was destined not only to become the custodian of cultural and artistic values, but also a leading country in the Arts, and especially in music. In Europe, however, one is not aware of it. The American "Marshall Plan" speaks primarily of the power and value of the dollar. To the morally hungry and mentally destitute people of Europe, America is still the dollar-making country, - the country of "mass-production" and material welfare, void of cultural foundation and interest. This misconception of America, and of the plentitude of American cultural life and her artistic achievements, must be corrected. Our belief in the blessings which art brings into the world is our creed. We believe that Art helps to release man from the grip of mental misery and blank fear; we believe that Art will triumph over excessive materialism and the cold reality and obsession of war.

While writing this and thinking of my voice as solitary in a desert, I happened to read an article which was like a response to my lonely call. This article by Raymond B. Fosdick is entitled: "Not Dollars Alone - Faith is also Needed." Let me quote from it: "There is a spiritual hunger in the world today that is not being satisfied by American export," - says the author, "the sickness of the human soul cannot be relieved by a diet of guns and machinery." Here is a word by a humanitarian, an American of high culture, a man of true heart and mind. We welcome this word because it rings from our own hearts.

In the first year following V.E.-Day, in 1946, I spoke from this stage in Tanglewood, of the need of spiritual food to a hungry and still bleeding world, urging for the support of the Fine Arts by our Government and pointing to the importance of Art, as fortifying and completing the structure of the state. The years since have strengthened our faith and singled out the significant place of the musician in our world. The lofty mission of music of our time makes an increased demandupon the high moral standing of the musician, his integrity and complete devotion to his art. How far has the musician progressed on this ascending path? What is his actual standing in the life and society of our day? By way of an answer let us examine and question the past. In less than two centuries, the standing of the musician has undergone a remarkable evolution and counts three distinctive periods.

The first period finds the musician in the inconspicuous place of an "entertainer", a member of the staff and in the service of some princely European court. It was not unusual, for example, to read notices asking for a valet or a steward who would also be a good accompanist. It is interesting to note that despite these circumstances the musician of that period manifested an astounding spiritual independence, a profound individuality and exceptional creative powers, - for this was the epoch of such inimitable masters and geniuses as Haydn and Mozart, and partly covered the time of Beethoven.

The second period extends into the post-romantic era, when the musician finds himself wrapped in a cloak of exclusiveness and adorned with a halo of the privileged; he becomes "l'enfant gate" of his society which takes pleasure in his eccentricities - his long hair, and allows him to break accepted and conventional rules. The artist, however, was soon to realize the artifice of this position and to detect the condescending attitude of society to him. He was eager to free himself of such travesty and to claim recognition on equal grounds with society. Now we have entered a third stage -- a period which was pointed out to us by great artists who were also great men. It seems only yesterday that we had among us Paderewski - the musician-patriot statesman and aristocrat of the spirit. We still have with us - though not among us - Albert Schweitzer - the musician-philosopher, scientist and humanitarian, who has set a singular example for mankind. The advent of such men announces a new era in music, an era where outer perfection brought to a definite point of attainment, does not suffice: where a new dimension is sought -- the infinite fourth dimension which rests with and within us. This elevated concept asks for a new spiritual strength, for an increased concentration and penetration into the innermost strata of self.

When a student decides to become a musician, let him first take counsel with himself. Does he possess the true gift and qualifications that give him a right to step upon the stage, where thousands of eyes watch him and thousands of hearts beat in anticipation of the message he is to bring through music and his art? Will he indeed open the gates of heaven and let the people experience ecstasy-were it for an infinitesimal moment; or will the gates stay closed and heaven remain a promise unfulfilled? A musician should realize that the new strength of which we speak lies in the coordination and cooperation of all his faculties, both as an artist and as a human being. He should be true to himself on as well as off the stage. We should be clean inside and out. "Strive for true humanity," says Goethe: "Become yourself a man who is true to his inner nature, a man whose deed is in tune with his character." The true artist-man will not submit to circumstances or to passing whims of society; rather, he will conquer circumstances and guide society, not with self-satisfaction but with self-confidence born of a full consciousness and acceptance of his mission and task. As one chosen by destiny and richly endowed by nature, the artist must have a sense of obligation toward those who are denied these riches. It is for him to repay nature and to offer his gifts to humanity, in all humility of heart, as an act of gratitude for the grace bestowed upon him.

APPLICATIONS AND ENROLLMENT

The number of applications in 1948 was considerably less than in 1947, probably due to the absence of the radio promotion for John Hancock Scholarships which existed in 1947:

S C H O L A R S H I P S

The policy of the Berkshire Music Center regarding the award of tuition scholarships is that no student whose talents and degree of achievement make attendance at Tanglewood a benefit to him and to the Music Center shall be prevented from enrolling because he cannot pay. For the most part this applies to tuition only. In conspicuously needy cases an effort was made to help with living expenses: for example, the two winners of the Steinert Award were allowed to use the award toward their dormitory charges, and were given a tuition scholarship by the Music Center. In fourteen other cases, free room was provided in Drake House and in the garage and barn at Tanglewood .

A total of 109 tuition scholarships was given by the Music Center, an increase of 24 over 1947 . Of these 14 were work scholarships given for services rendered as personnel managers of the orchestras, assistant librarians, stage assistants, and so forth .

A total of 105 students attended as veterans under the G.I. Bill of Rights, as against 123 in 1947 . The decrease in the number of G.I. students corresponds quite closely to the increase in the number of scholarships awarded. The G.I.Bill will continue to fall off as the student's eligibility is exhausted, and requests for scholarships will doubtless increase in proportion .

Comparison - 1947 with 1948:

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Tuition | | Maintenance | Tuition | | Maintenance |
| Music Center Scholarships | 67 | $7760. | - - - - | 95 | $10,920. | 1 - $100 |
| Work Schol. | 18 | 2040. | 1 - $150. | 14 | 1,620. | 14 free room |
| TOTAL | 85 | $9800. | 1 $150. | 109 | $12,540. | 15 $100 plus rooms |

Total value of scholarships from all sources, including G.I. Bill - -

231 - $29,273.34 240 - $28,691.92

NOTE: Since Music Center tuition scholarships have been actually waivers of tuition, the above figures represent value rather than cash-out-of-pocket. Maintenance amounts are real expenditures.

This class was divided into two parts; Active conductors and Auditors. The Active conductors were, Irwin Hoffman, Seymour Lipkin and Howard Shanet. Auditors numbered nearly sixty. The Active students received individual conducting instruction from Dr. Koussevitzky and Mr. Bernstein. They rehearsed the Department 11 Orchestra under supervision of Dr. Koussevitzky, Mr. Bernstein and Mr. de Carvalho. Each student conducted at all the Friday night concerts of this orchestra.

The Auditors class received class instruction from Mr. Bernstein in score analysis and the principles of conducting. This group formed their own orchestra for the purpose of giving each student an opportunity to conduct. These students also attended the rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the orchestra of Department 11. Several auditors were given the opportunity to conduct at the Reading Rehearsals of this orchestra on Monday afternoons.

Mr. Bernstein's Conducting Class was held three times weekly, each session being one hour and a half in length.

The activities of this Department were again divided between Hugh Ross and Robert Shaw. Mr. Ross' class was seperated into Active and Auditor; Mr. Shaw's into three: Active, Semi-Active and Auditor.

Each instructor held Choral Conducting Classes three times weekly, the classes being one hour and a half in length.

Active students conducted at Choral Concerts given in the Chamber Music Hall. Works at these concerts were given by the Small Choir numbering about sixty, a group chosen by audition at the beginning of the session. Mr. Ross' Madrigal Group, also chosen by audition numbered about twenty, appeared too at these concerts.

The Department 11 Orchestra met for three hour rehearsals four times weekly. In the orchestra's schedule there was also a three hour Reading Rehearsal each Monday afternoon, as well as Sectional Rehearsals for three hours which were directed by members of the instrumental faculty. Reading Rehearsals were conducted by Mr. de Carvalho, and several members of the Auditors class. Friday night concerts were given during the six weeks, in the Shed, at which Dr. Koussevitzky's students conducted regularly. Mr. Bernstein, Mr. de Carvalho, Lukas Foss, Aaron Copland and Richard Burgin also conducted. On two occasions Dr. Koussevitzky conducted the student orchestra.

Soloists at these concerts were Manfred Clynes, piano, Robert Karol, viola, Gordon Staples, violin, Addele Addison, soprano, Eleanor Davis, mezzo. Erling Bengtsson, cello, Joseph Bernstein and Zvi Zeitlin, violins, Phyllis Curtin, soprano, Kenneth Gordon, violin, and Raymond Lewenthal, piano

Mrs. Andrew H. Hepburn, a unique benefactor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, died on June 1, 1948. In 1937 she gave to this organization the estate of Tanglewood in Lenox, Massachusetts. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Aspinwall Tappan, had established it more than eighty years before. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Dixey, had maintained it, beautifying it without and enriching it within by generous hospitalities to friends and to the arts. Through its inheritance Mrs. Hepburn, born Rosamond Dixey, received not only a country place of extraordinary beauty, but a wealth of association and tradition. In presenting it to the Boston Symphony Orchestra she linked the years of its gracious past with all the coming years of devotion to the nurture of the spirit through the infinitely valuable agency of music.

The Trustees of the Orchestra would therefore affirm their continuing gratitude to Mrs. Hepburn and their purpose to render the very name of Tanglewood an enduring tribute to her memory.

Members of Department 11 Orchestra and the pianists of this Department were formed into about thirty-five groups weekly for chamber music study. Each group worked with a faculty member four times weekly, the class being one hour and a half in length.

Gregor Piatigorsky, head of this department, sought to fulfill the requests and suggestions of faculty members and students whenever possible. Groups were formed with the intention of giving students the opportunity to play in ensembles of various types and sizes, to work with as many of the faculty as possible and to cover a wide range of the varied styles of chamber-music composition.

A chamber-music concert was given every Sunday morning by the students. These programs were made from works studied during the previous week.

The students of Department IV Orchestra (Opera and Chamber Orchestra) also participated in the chamber-music work of this Department. Assignments for works to illustrate lectures, Composer's Concerts and other activities were also made for these students. Another undertaking was the preparation of St. John Passion by Bach, under the direction of Robert Shaw, performed with the Chorus of Department V on August 4th.

All assignments of works and faculty members were made by Ralph Berkowitz.

The composition department consisted of sixteen students divided equally between Aaron Copland and Darius Milhaud. Each student received individual instruction for one hour and a half per week. In addition each instructor held a composition class twice weekly. These classes discussed problems of orchestration, analysis, etc.

Students were assigned to individual practice studios for several hours daily. Composition students schedules were left as free as possible of obligations so that their time could be used as the individual student found best. Open to them were all orchestral rehearsals, choral rehearsals, lectures, and classes in harmonic analysis and solfege. Participation in the Festival Chorus was not obligatory.

A group of students, attached to the composition department met several times with Irving Fine and also attended some of the composition classes.

Six composer's concerts were given in the Chamber Music Hall under the supervision of Mr. Copland. The programs for these were organized by William Flanagan. Performers at these concerts were frequently volunteers from other departments of the school but some works were assigned by the chamber music department.

Students in this department were accepted in one of the following divisions.

Opera Dramatics for Singers. Active students worked daily with Boris Goldovsky, Sarah Caldwell, Jan Meyerowitz, Felix Wolfes in the preparation of operatic scenes and excerpts. Groups were also formed which studied with Conductors and Coaches under the supervision of faculty members. Auditors observed the work done in the Opera Literature Classes in the afternoons. Auditors did not take part in the projects, but instead sang in the Festival Chorus. They also took part in the Opera Chorus and in general filled in when needed. An Opera Lecture was given every afternoon in the Theatre-Concert Hall. This lecture was open to any student who wished to attend.

Song Repertoire. Available to active students and several advanced auditors. This class consisted of individual lessons with Ralph Berkowitz in the repertoire of French, German, and English songs. Pianists for these lessons were assigned from Department 11. The members of this class gave two concerts, the programs of which are to be found elsewhere in this report.

Conducting, Coaching and Stage Directing. A limited number of students worked under the direction of Mr. Goldovsky in the preparation of Opera Scenes. Conductors were given full charge of a project in that they prepared the orchestra and did the stage direction. These works were performed at the various Opera Scenes.

Scenic Arts. Students worked with Mrs. Lawthers and Mr. Abiskhairoun, in the design, construction and painting of sets and scenery for performances in the Theatre. Mr. Van Witsen also had qualified students for the design and execution in the division of Costuming.

Opera and Chamber Orchestra. This ensemble worked three mornings weekly from 9-12 as an Opera Orchestra and twice weekly for the same length of time, as a Chamber Orchestra under the direction of Mr. de Carvalho. Two chamber concerts were given in the Theatre under his direction with soloists from Departments II and IV, and the orchestra accompanied many operatic scenes and excerpts at 'Opera Scenes' performances.
Students in this ensemble joined Department II chamber-music classes every afternoon.

In addition to six performances of "Opera Scenes" the students of Department IV presented for their major performance of the summer Rossini's "Turk in Italy". This was first presented in a full-dress Preview on August 8th, and then received two more performances on August 9th and 11th. A program with casts and all credits will be found elsewhere in this Report.

BALDWIN PIANO

Il Turco in Italia

In the year 1814 Rossini wrote for Milan an opera which was intended as a pendant to his recent "L' Italiana in Algeri," which had had an outstanding success in Venice. "Il Turco in Italia" was accordingly performed at La Scala, August 14, 1814.

"The Turk in Italy" had a number of presentations in various European cities, and under various titles. It made its way to Vicenza in 1816 as "Il Tutore Deluso," to Rome in 1819 as "La Capricciosa Correta," and to London in 1821 as "The Turkish Lovers;" to New York on March 14, 1826, where it was produced by Garcia and repeated in 1840. The music was often praised. A French critic wrote in the Constitutional in 1820, "Il étonne presque toujours, et il charme souvent."

The failure of "Il Turco" to hold the stage was, in the opinion of Boris Goldovsky, due to the looseness of the plot, which has ultimately visited the same fate upon all of Rossini's operas except "The Barber of Seville." He has borne in mind that this composer freely reordered his operas when he saw fit and freely salvaged music from this or other operas which no longer held the stage. Mr. Goldovsky has reordered the numbers, tightened the plot. "The new version," states Mr. Goldovsky, "preserves all the charm of Rossini's delightful music, while the revised plot brings the story closer to present day audiences." More important than the Turk himself is the poet who "lives in front of the curtain, virtually writes the opera as it progresses, and is on equal terms with the people on both sides of the footlights."

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, with the support of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, maintains at Tanglewood this opportunity for the study of music in connection with the concerts of the Berkshire Festival.

D E P A R T M E N T  F I V E  C H O R U S

The Festival Chorus, composed of the complete student body with the exception of students of Department II and IV orchestras and Active Singers in the Opera Department, gave more performances this summer than in any previous year. Under the direction of Robert Shaw the Festival Chorus sang Brahms' Requiem and Debussy's Blessed Damozel at the Festival Concert of August 14th. They also sang Mahler's 2nd Symphony and Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex" under the supervision of Hugh Ross. The first of these was conducted at a Festival Concert by Leonard Bernstein and the latter by Dr, Koussevitzky.

Members of the Festival Chorus sang the 65th Cantata of Bach at the concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra of July 13th and 27th, conducted by Hugh Ross, and under the direction of Robert Shaw gave a performance on August 4th of Bach's St.John Passion.

The Festival Chorus met three times weekly for the preparation of works to be sung at the Festival Concerts. The Small Choir, a group chosen by audition from the large chorus, also met three mornings weekly for the preparation of their repertoire. Mr. Ross formed another smaller group, the Madrigal Chorus which prepared works for performance at Choral Concerts in the Chamber Music Hall. This met three times weekly for one hour rehearsals.

This orchestra was composed of students whose ability or degree of advancement did not warrant their acceptance in the orchestra of Department 11.

Frederick Fennell was in complete charge of the orchestra this summer. Its schedule included Sectional Rehearsals on Mondays and daily three-hour rehearsals during the remainder of the week.

Three orchestral concerts were given in the Shed.

Members of this orchestra attended Festival Chorus rehearsals as a regular part of their schedule and had, during the first three weeks of the session, chamber-music classes with the same faculty which gave instruction to Department 11 students.

A lecture course held twice weekly by Irving Fine. Each class was one hour in length. The following works were analyzed:

Bach. Well-Tempered Clavichord. Book 1: Preludes in Eb major and F minor.

Schubert. Quintet in C major, Opus 163

Brahms. Clarinet Quintet Opus 115

Shapero. No. Three of Three Amateur Sonatas

Foss. String Quartet in G

Copland. Piano Variations

Fine. Symphonia for Orchestra

The course was of greatest interest for conductors, composers and those students who are planning to teach. It had less value for amateurs and those students lacking a theoretical background.

FORUMS

Four forums were held on Monday evenings in Sedgwick Hall of the Lenox Library. Mr. Aaron Copland, assistant director of the Berkshire Music Center presided as Moderator. The subjects and panels were chosen and organized by the Student Council. Following the prepared talks by the panel, Mr. Copland invited questions from the audience. The programs of the Forums were:

Monday, July 12 - Subject - "INSPIRATION"

Speakers: Julius Herford
Darius Milhaud
Gregor Piatigorsky
Hugh Ross

Monday, July 19 - Subject - "ARE THE TIMES CONDUCIVE TO A HEALTHY MUSICAL LIFE?"

Speakers: Lukas Foss
Leonard Bernstein
Frederick Fennell
Francis Robinson

Monday, July 26 - Subject - "WHAT IS THE PLACE OF WOMEN IN MUSIC?"

Speakers: Olga Gratch
Beatrice Brown
Daniel Stern
Robert Starer

Monday, August 2 - Subject - "WHAT ARE THE PROBLEMS OF THE ORCHESTRAL AND CHORAL MUSICIAN IN RELATION TO:
A. HIS CONDUCTOR
B. HIS ART
C. HIMSELF?"

Speakers: Andre Speyer
Alfred Breuning
Norman Kasow
Harold Scott

THE STUDENT COUNCIL AND THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The Student Council for the season 1948 with Miss Katharine Wolff as Faculty Advisor consisted of the following members:

Irwin Hoffman - Chairman
Phyllis Curtin
Herbert Grossman
Lilian Kallir
Robert Karol
Robert Nagel
Howard Shanet
Cynthia Sweeney
Gerson Yessin

The Council held weekly meetings during the lunch hour. Problems directly affecting the student body were discussed. Students with special concerns were invited to the meeting to present them. A representative of the faculty was present at each meeting to advise the Council and to report to the Director if necessary. The Council had the right to ask for a meeting with the faculty if a problem required further discussion. It was not necessary to call such a meeting this summer.

The Council proved to be an earnest and serious group of students who showed energy and efficiency in arranging a number of activities. It organized a party at Tracy Hall which created a greater feeling of sociability and wider acquaintance among the students, and financially netted a sum of money which the Council voted to set aside as the nucleus of a Student Scholarship Fund. The last two Monday night Forums were arranged by the Council. It provided the subjects for discussion and selected the speakers from the student body, who proved to be able and convincing.

The Alumni Association.

A campaign for membership is now being conducted by the Student Council. A staff for the Alumni Bulletin has been selected as follows:

Leonard Burkat - editor
Alfred Patterson - treasurer
Cynthia Sweeney - corresponding secretary
Muriel Schiff and Helen Stott - in charge of the files.

Plans for extending activities of the organization will take definite shape as the membership increases in number and scope.

Dedication of the Little Red House

On July 23, 24 and 25, numerous members of the National Federation of Music Club gathered at Tanglewood for ceremonies connected with the dedication of The Little Red House, a replica of the house in which Hawthorne lived at Tanglewood in 1850 and '51, built by the Federation and presented to the Music Center for use as a studio. On Friday, July 23, the Federation had various meetings in Lenox and at Tanglewood, and in the evening attended the concert of the Orchestra of Department II, which was dedicated to the Federation. Miss Adele Addison, soprano, a former Federation prize winner, sang. On the Saturday morning members visited various classes of the Music Center and had luncheon at Tanglewood.

At two o'clock the actual dedication ceremonies were held at the Little Red House. Mrs. Royden J. Keith, national president of the Federation, presided. Mrs. Guy Patterson Gannett, chairman of the Little Red House Committee, presented the house to Dr. Koussevitzky, representing the Music Center. Judge Raymond Wilkins, representing the Trustees of the Orchestra, presented Mrs. Gannett with a testimonial manuscript of thanks. Mr. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Dana spoke of Hawthorne's life and experiences at Tanglewood.

Following the dedication ceremonies, a recital was given in the Chamber Music Hall by three winners of Federation scholarships given by the Newport Music Club. The students participating were Lucretia Ferre, Martha Butler and Robert Allen. Saturday evening Paula Lenchner, a former Federation scholarship winner, gave a recital at Sedgwick Hall of the Lenox Library in Lenox.

On Sunday morning, many members of the Federation attended the regular chamber music concert of Department II, at which Jean Brainerd, a scholarship winner, sang. In the afternoon many stayed to hear Dr. Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the scheduled Mozart program.

PROGRAM NOTES . . . By DR. HUGO LEICHTENTRITT

Johann Sebastian Bach 1685–1750

BRANDENBURG CONCERTO No. 3, for String Orchestra and Cembalo

The six so-called Brandenburg Concertos represent Bach's version of the concerto grosso idea, an Italian achievement of the early Eighteenth Century. Corelli, Handel, and Vivaldi are generally considered the chief masters of the concerto grosso, a composition in concerto form for a rather large orchestra, a "tutti," to which is opposed a little group of solo instruments, the "concertino." The dialogue of the "tutti" and the "concertino" is the constructive idea of the concerto grosso. Bach in his Brandenburg concertos has varied this traditional formal idea with an inventiveness, a masterly art far ahead of his predecessors and contemporary competitors. The six Brandenburg Concertos, while maintaining the dialogue feature in every case, are yet totally different from each other, displaying a sovereign formal mastery beyond comparison. They got their name from the fact that Bach had written them for a prince of Brandenburg, a great lover and connoisseur of music. Bach's dedication to the prince is dated 1721. The Brandenburg Concertos thus represent the culmination of the master's production in his middle period.

Bach's Third Brandenburg Concerto is written for three groups concertizing with each other, three violins, three violas, three violoncellos and thoroughbass. Its first movement grows out of its principal motive, heard at the start. In their dialogue these three groups with the bass are in many places elaborated in ten distinct parts, reduced to four parts in the tutti episodes. The contrast of the massive tutti to the fine polyphonic texture in the solo sections is very effective. There is no adagio; its place is taken by a few chords. For our performance, however, an adagio has been borrowed from the serious, impressive orchestral introduction of the cantata "Christ lag in Todesbanden." A vivid dance-like piece in song form, similar to a Gigue, acts as finale.

CANTATA No. 65

"Sie werden aus Saba Alle Kommen" for Tenor, Bass, and Chorus

About two hundred church cantatas by Bach are left to us, and many others, close to that number, have been lost. In the gigantic life work of Bach the cantatas occupy the largest space. Yet they are little known and rarely find a place in symphonic programs, though much of the master's finest music is accumulated in them. Bach performed a cantata at every Sunday or Holiday service in the Leipzig St. Thomas church. The cantata selected for our program is a fair sample of what a Bach cantata means in artistic quality as well as in extension, containing more than half a dozen pieces and demanding eighteen to twenty minutes for its performance.

It is written for the Feast of the Epiphany and treats the story of the kings from Sheba, adoring the infant Christ and bringing myrh, incense and gold. The first chorus is a joyful piece with a pastoral tinge, in 12–8 time. The music suggests a festive procession, as the wise men from the East approach with their suite of attendants. Two corni, two flutes, two oboi di caccia and the strings accompany the lovely choral music, giving it a rustic, idyllic color. Next follows a fine old chorale, the famous tune "Puer natus in Bethlehem." So far the scenery has been described musically. Now follow the poet's and the composer's reflections. The bass recitative speaks of the fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy, and the following aria asserts that gold and incense are not precious enough. Jesus asks for the heart of his followers. In this bass aria, two concertizing oboi di caccia form an elaborate terzetto with the ornate solo voice above the thorough bass. A second tenor recitative is addressed directly to the infant Jesus, and in the following tenor aria an ecstatic effusion of devotion and affection is expressed in an inspired, straightforward, joyful and brilliant piece, richly accompanied by all instruments. A second chorale for the chorus concludes the cantata.

Two Concertos for Three Pianos and Strings

According to an old German tradition Bach wrote his two concertos for three pianos for himself and his two sons Wilhelm Friedemann and Philipp Emanuel. Certainly it must have been a treat to hear those eminent musicians perform these masterly and highly ingenious concertos, written con amore by the great master of masters!

The first movement of the D minor concerto is in the main given over to the three solo instruments, whereas the string orchestra provides only a background of plain chords. Bach's idea here was not the opposition, or a dialogue of the solo group and an orchestral tutti, but rather a contest of the three pianos with each other. They sometimes form a massive tutti in unison; at other times they converse with each other in an animated dialogue or chase each other playfully, obtaining in these and still other ensemble features an amazing variety of effect, a fascinating rhythmic vitality, a never ceasing flow of sound. Constant interchange of forte and piano is a peculiarity of this piece.

Whenever Bach presents a slow movement "alla Siciliana" one can be sure of an extraordinary display of fine melody in the characteristic dotted, lilting rhythms in the frame of 6-8 or 12-8 time. This tuneful and euphonious F major melody alternates with smoothly gliding figures in sixteenth notes. The finale subjects a real concerto theme with periodic structure of its four measures to an ingenious fugal treatment — a procedure not at all frequent in Bach's fugues. Rippling interludes of running sixteenth passages provide the necessary contrast in this concerto fugue.

The second concerto, in C major, has still larger proportions and more brilliant and powerful effect. The first movement starts with a vigorous tutti: the three pianos as counterpoint to the strings, followed by dialogue of the solo instruments. A scanty thematic material is with great art expanded into a big, majestic piece, rolling off like a large river. The second movement, in A minor, is a noble adagio of considerable harmonic and rhythmical complication. The finale is a powerful fugue phantasy strangely reminding in design and contrapuntal texture of the famous finale in Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony. One of the contrapuntal motives is identical with the third theme in the five-part C-sharp minor triple fugue of the Well-Tempered Clavier.

Suite No. 2, in B Minor for Flute and Strings

Bach's four orchestral suites make use of the chain of dance forms introduced by an overture or a concerto-like larger piece, as we find them in the so-called English suites for the harpsichord. The B minor Suite of our program is written for a solo flute and a string band. This suite, with its three other companions, has been a favorite of audiences, ever since Mendelssohn, a century ago, revived them for the first time. The weightiest piece is the overture, consisting of an introductory Largo, followed by a brisk fugue leading to a new fugal section in slower tempo. The seven dance tunes heard after the overture are delightful rococo music, combining popular melody with refined treatment. A Rondeau, Sarabande, Bourrée I and II, Polonaise with double minuet, and a tricky and light Badinerie make up the suite of dances that show Bach from his most jovial and amiable side.

Symphony in C major, No. 34 (K. 338)

It has been the practice of these Mozart festival programs to couple a less known Mozart symphony with one of the world-renowned last symphonies. Thus our present program contains besides the famous E-flat Symphony a rarely heard score, a work of Mozart's last Salzburg years, written about 1780. This vigorous C major Symphony, No. 34, shows experimental traits, revealing the various influences acting upon Mozart in those years. The interesting first movement combines reminiscences of the Italian opera overtures (in the energetic first theme) with that peculiar Mozartean "singing allegro" (in the second theme) that he had learned as a child in London from Johann Christian Bach, Sebastian's youngest, Italianized son. The third episode, starting mysteriously pianissimo, applies the famous Mannheim crescendo, as it gradually mounts to a brilliant fortissimo close. The development section in the middle of the movement is seasoned with colorful romantic touches, in its harmony and modulation and in its mysterious veiled piano interrupted by sudden fortes.

The second movement, an andante, employs only strings and bassoons. In its melody it represents a certain charming provincial, slightly old-fashioned type, again applying the dynamic Mannheim contrasts of piano and forte.

The symphony has no minuet. The rapid and gay Finale is a sort of perpetuum mobile, reminding of the saltarello finale in Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, in its running triplet figures and its snatches of popular melody.

Mozart's Divertimenti and Serenades, a type very popular in 18th century Austria, are not written for the concert hall but for performance on the street or in a private house, at special occasions. Wind instruments, more effective in open air than strings, are used with preference in these works.

The Serenade in C minor, for eight wind instruments, was written in 1782. One of Mozart's most striking works, it reveals a deeply passionate, even demoniac character. Rarely does Mozart indulge in such exciting

Johann Sebastian Bach 1685–1750

BRANDENBURG CONCERTO No. 3, for String Orchestra and Cembalo

The six so-called Brandenburg Concertos represent Bach's version of the concerto grosso idea, an Italian achievement of the early Eighteenth Century. Corelli, Handel, and Vivaldi are generally considered the chief masters of the concerto grosso, a composition in concerto form for a rather large orchestra, a "tutti," to which is opposed a little group of solo instruments, the "concertino." The dialogue of the "tutti" and the "concertino" is the constructive idea of the concerto grosso. Bach in his Brandenburg concertos has varied this traditional formal idea with an inventiveness, a masterly art far ahead of his predecessors and contemporary competitors. The six Brandenburg Concertos, while maintaining the dialogue feature in every case, are yet totally different from each other, displaying a sovereign formal mastery beyond comparison. They got their name from the fact that Bach had written them for a prince of Brandenburg, a great lover and connoisseur of music. Bach's dedication to the prince is dated 1721. The Brandenburg Concertos thus represent the culmination of the master's production in his middle period.

Bach's Third Brandenburg Concerto is written for three groups concertizing with each other, three violins, three violas, three violoncellos and thoroughbass. Its first movement grows out of its principal motive, heard at the start. In their dialogue these three groups with the bass are in many places elaborated in ten distinct parts, reduced to four parts in the tutti episodes. The contrast of the massive tutti to the fine polyphonic texture in the solo sections is very effective. There is no adagio; its place is taken by a few chords. For our performance, however, an adagio has been borrowed from the serious, impressive orchestral introduction of the cantata "Christ lag in Todesbanden." A vivid dance-like piece in song form, similar to a Gigue, acts as finale.

CANTATA No. 65

"Sie werden aus Saba Alle Kommen" for Tenor, Bass, and Chorus

About two hundred church cantatas by Bach are left to us, and many others, close to that number, have been lost. In the gigantic life work of Bach the cantatas occupy the largest space. Yet they are little known and rarely find a place in symphonic programs, though much of the master's finest music is accumulated in them. Bach performed a cantata at every Sunday or Holiday service in the Leipzig St. Thomas church. The cantata selected for our program is a fair sample of what a Bach cantata means in artistic quality as well as in extension, containing more than half a dozen pieces and demanding eighteen to twenty minutes for its performance.

It is written for the Feast of the Epiphany and treats the story of the kings from Sheba, adoring the infant Christ and bringing myrh, incense and gold. The first chorus is a joyful piece with a pastoral tinge, in 12–8 time. The music suggests a festive procession, as the wise men from the East approach with their suite of attendants. Two corni, two flutes, two oboi di caccia and the strings accompany the lovely choral music, giving it a rustic, idyllic color. Next follows a fine old chorale, the famous tune "Puer natus in Bethlehem." So far the scenery has been described musically. Now follow the poet's and the composer's reflections. The bass recitative speaks of the fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy, and the following aria asserts that gold and incense are not precious enough. Jesus asks for the heart of his followers. In this bass aria, two concertizing oboi di caccia form an elaborate terzetto with the ornate solo voice above the thorough bass. A second tenor recitative is addressed directly to the infant Jesus, and in the following tenor aria an ecstatic effusion of devotion and affection is expressed in an inspired, straightforward, joyful and brilliant piece, richly accompanied by all instruments. A second chorale for the chorus concludes the cantata.

Two Concertos for Three Pianos and Strings

According to an old German tradition Bach wrote his two concertos for three pianos for himself and his two sons Wilhelm Friedemann and Philipp Emanuel. Certainly it must have been a treat to hear those eminent musicians perform these masterly and highly ingenious concertos, written con amore by the great master of masters!

The first movement of the D minor concerto is in the main given over to the three solo instruments, whereas the string orchestra provides only a background of plain chords. Bach's idea here was not the opposition, or a dialogue of the solo group and an orchestral tutti, but rather a contest of the three pianos with each other. They sometimes form a massive tutti in unison; at other times they converse with each other in an animated dialogue or chase each other playfully, obtaining in these and still other ensemble features an amazing variety of effect, a fascinating rhythmic vitality, a never ceasing flow of sound. Constant interchange of forte and piano is a peculiarity of this piece.

Whenever Bach presents a slow movement "alla Siciliana" one can be sure of an extraordinary display of fine melody in the characteristic dotted, lilting rhythms in the frame of 6–8 or 12–8 time. This tuneful and euphonious F major melody alternates with smoothly gliding figures in sixteenth notes. The finale subjects a real concerto theme with periodic structure of its four measures to an ingenious fugal treatment — a procedure not at all frequent in Bach's fugues. Rippling interludes of running sixteenth passages provide the necessary contrast in this concerto fugue.

The second concerto, in C major, has still larger proportions and more brilliant and powerful effect. The first movement starts with a vigorous tutti: the three pianos as counterpoint to the strings, followed by dialogue of the solo instruments. A scanty thematic material is with great art expanded into a big, majestic piece, rolling off like a large river. The second movement, in A minor, is a noble adagio of considerable harmonic and rhythmical complication. The finale is a powerful fugue phantasy strangely reminding in design and contrapuntal texture of the famous finale in Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony. One of the contrapuntal motives is identical with the third theme in the five-part C-sharp minor triple fugue of the Well-Tempered Clavier.

Suite No. 2, in B Minor for Flute and Strings

Bach's four orchestral suites make use of the chain of dance forms introduced by an overture or a concerto-like larger piece, as we find them in the so-called English suites for the harpsichord. The B minor Suite of our program is written for a solo flute and a string band. This suite, with its three other companions, has been a favorite of audiences, ever since Mendelssohn, a century ago, revived them for the first time. The weightiest piece is the overture, consisting of an introductory Largo, followed by a brisk fugue leading to a new fugal section in slower tempo. The seven dance tunes heard after the overture are delightful rococo music, combining popular melody with refined treatment. A Rondeau, Sarabande, Bourrée I and II, Polonaise with double minuet, and a tricky and light Badinerie make up the suite of dances that show Bach from his most jovial and amiable side.

It has been the practice of these Mozart festival programs to couple a less known Mozart symphony with one of the world-renowned last symphonies. Thus our present program contains besides the famous E-flat Symphony a rarely heard score, a work of Mozart's last Salzburg years, written about 1780. ## Serenade ("Nacht Musique") for Winds, K. 388

Mozart's Divertimenti and Serenades, a type very popular in 18th century Austria, are not written for the concert hall but for performance on the street or in a private house, at special occasions. Wind instruments, more effective in open air than strings, are used with preference in these works.

The Serenade in C minor, for eight wind instruments, was written in 1782. One of Mozart's most striking works, it reveals a deeply passionate, even demoniac character. Rarely does Mozart indulge in such exciting and pathetic utterance, seemingly contrary to the predominating character of his music, but all works in this class, including the G minor symphony and quintet, are of profound impressiveness. The darkly tinged powerful first movement is followed by a beautiful Andante with a romantic touch, a menuet in which the contrapuntal arts of canon and even canon in contrart motion are used with consummate mastery, and a finale in variation form, a piece of admirable art.

Piano Concerto in G Major, K. 453

This concerto, one of the less well known of the twenty-five Mozart piano concertos, is nevertheless a fully mature work, rich in ideas, interesting in treatment, grateful for the soloist and a charming experience to the listener. The first movement, Allegro, starts with a condensed orchestral exposition of the principal themes. The lively, yet energetic, first theme is followed by a second theme, again in G major, expanded a while, making little excursions to the flat keys and ending in a vigorous G major cadence. A serene Coda, starting piano, winds up the tutti section with a forceful third G major cadence. The solo section repeats the first theme in a more ornate style, comes to a new second theme, now in D major, and concludes with a third theme already heard in the tutti section. This double, lengthy and involved exposition of the thematic material is followed by a development section, in which thematic as well as new ideas are treated with Mozart's characteristic ingenuity and freedom in modulating to distant keys. The reprise of the first part is surprising by a few unexpected turns, leading up impressively to the cadenza, after which a fine coda concludes the movement.

The second movement, Andante, in C major, commences with four bars of quiet introduction by the strings, leading to a lovely little terzetto of flute, oboe and bassoon. The enchantingly melodious expansion of the principal theme by the solo instrument in an aria style of great beauty has its novel and surprising moments, such as the distant modulation to the key of C-sharp, with seven sharps, before the return to the C major theme.

The gay, light-hearted and graceful finale treats a popular tune in a combination of variation technique and rondo structure. Towards the close a presto intermezzo with new thematic material interrupts the chain of variations, making the return of the variation tune doubly effective.

Symphony in E-flat Major No. 39 (K. 543)

This symphony, the first of Mozart's world-famous three last symphonies in E-flat, G minor, and C major, begins with an Adagio introduction of twenty-six measures, an earnest, solemn piece in the character of a religious march. Its thematic material is completely exposed in the first two measures, with the long-held first note, the dotted march rhythm, the rapid scale passage in thirty-second notes. The Adagio impresses the listener not by its well-defined melody, but rather by its solemnity, the rich sound of its rhythms, the majestic sweep of the scale passages, and the dramatic entry of the basses. Towards the close the atmosphere changes. The dark clouds have vanished, and a few measures of subdued lament represent the last melancholy, elegiac touch before the Allegro starts with its buoyant grace and joyful vigor.

The first theme, with its beautiful and elegant E-flat arpeggio, its transparent accompaniment, is immediately taken up by the basses. Somewhat transformed, the arpeggio motive dominates the next section. With its energetic forte it has a striking similarity to the principal theme of Beethoven's Eroica Symphony, of which we are reminded more than once in this movement. Later on, the descending scale figure from the introduction reappears, contributing to the brilliant and vigorous onward rush of the full orchestra. After this broad expanse of almost martial energy and vigor, the second theme marks a delightful return to the limpid clarity and melodious charm of the first theme. This thinly scored intermezzo soon gives way to a new display of almost Beethoven-like "heroic" temper in the closing section. Also the rather concise development section exhibits these similarities still more clearly, especially where an outburst of forte is suddenly interrupted by total silence, followed by three measures of gentle wailing, leading charmingly and unexpectedly back to the recapitulation of the principal theme. The reprise of the entire exposition shows no marked deviation from the earlier section. The short coda is an amplification of the final E-flat cadence and a forceful underlining of the close in a brilliant climax of sound.

The second movement, Andante, is written in a modified sonata form with three themes, omitting the development section in the middle. The gentle and melodious first theme, in A-flat, is written in a typical ternary song form. The second theme, in F minor, with its violent accents, its somber color and loud lament, is in strong contrast to the first theme. Further on, the wood winds converse on the quietly musing third theme, in E-flat major. A somewhat varied recapitulation of the entire first section leads back in a charming little chromatic quartet of clarinets and horns to the last entry of the principal theme, rounding off the movement most beautifully in a broad epilogue.

The third movement is a Menuetto of a joyful, vigorous type. Its first theme with its strongly accented chords, its staccato arpeggios, belongs to the same emotional sphere as certain episodes of the first movement. The second half of the theme, however, responds to the energetic beginning with a soft, graceful melody. The Trio, one of the most delightful bits of idyllic, rustic music ever written by Mozart, gets its effects from a duet of the clarinets, with echo responses of the flutes, horns and bassoons.

The Finale, Allegro, is a piece of brilliant vivacity. Its incessant bustle and jocose character give it a kinship with many of the finales of Haydn, but it is also an older relative of the finale of Beethoven's Fourth Symphony. The principal theme is, in a sense, the only theme from which all the others are derived. The development section adds ingenious contrapuntal traits and harmonic refinement to the thematic substance. A short coda expands and thereby strengthens the joyful and festive close.

The Berkshire Music Center took part in an effort inaugurated by Dr. Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, to establish a fund for the assistance of European artists.

On August 3rd "Tanglewood on Parade" was presented to thousands of visitors who were on the grounds from about 4 p. m. . For a small group of visitors, there were Opera Scenes in the Formal Gardens at that hour. At 6 o'clock the entire student body paraded with banners to the accompaniment of a brass band, towards a central location on the Lawn, where Dr. Koussevitzky greeted the guests. Trumpet calls announced performances by all our departments simultaneously in various parts of Tanglewood. The orchestra in the Shed, Chorus on the Rehearsal Stage, Chamber-Music in the Chamber Music Hall, and Opera Scenes in the Theatre-Concert Hall .

After picnic suppers, a Manifestation in the Shed brought forth the true nature of our country's obligation to the European artist, and such men as Dr. Koussevitzky, Archibald MacLeish, Dr. Felix Frankfurter, Aaron Copland, Dr. Howard Hansen and others addressed the large audience upon this subject. This marked the true inauguration of nation-wide assistance to the Old World .

The evening was brought to a close by Dr. Koussevitzky's broadcast concert with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, after which there were fireworks to the accompaniment of a student orchestra playing waltzes on the Porch .

III

Hindemith . . . . . Sonata*
Pastorale
Moderately fast—Slow—Tempo primo
Passacaglia

*This sonata was composed for Mr. Piatigorsky and completed last March. It is here having its first performance.

A tranquil theme, equally divided between the instruments, opens the sonata, and the quietness of mood is maintained through a subsidiary theme in 7-4. The piano introduces a fugal subject which both instruments develop at length, until finally only the subject's first four notes are sounded with massive harmonies. The music quickly recedes to a recapitulation of the opening pastoral theme, with a new quiet rhythmic figure in the piano, but soon the fugue-subject reappears and is combined with the opening theme. The movement closes with the fugue's first four notes, ff in the piano, and then softly in the bass of the 'cello.

The opening of the second movement is given to a jaunty, light-hearted subject, which is soon replaced by a slow section of great expressiveness and power. The opening section then returns with a highly ornamented, arabesque-like piano part.

The final movement is a powerful passacaglia in classic style which leads to a final fugato based on a reiterated rhythmic figure.—R.B.

Dormitories - Transportation and Buildings.

Dormitories:

Students of the Berkshire Music Center in the 1948 season were housed as follows:

101 men in Tracy Hall, Lenox
119 women in the Lenox School, Lenox
26 men and 8 women in Drake House, Lenox (the former Rollins Theatre School)
9 men lived in tents on the Tanglewood Lake front
8 men lived over the garage at Tanglewood (scholarship students who had work at Tanglewood before classes started)
8 students lived in the cottages on South Mountain near Pittsfield
2 lived in the Barn at Tanglewood (custodians)
175 students lived in outside accommodations

The financial results of the dormitory operation will be found in the financial report.

Transportation:

Bus transportation between the Lenox School and Tracy Hall dormitories and Tanglewood was provided by Mr. Joseph Cowhig of Lenox . This service was included in the dormitory fee, and there was no extra charge to the students.

New Buildings:

New buildings at Tanglewood this season included the new Tanglewood Music Store and Exhibition Room at the Main Gate, an extension for the manager's office off the Press Room, the Little Red House, and a new tuning room constructed under the stage of the Chamber Music Hall.
The Little Red House was used for Dr. Koussevitzky's and Mr. Piatigorsky's classes, and for opera coaching classes. One of the rooms was used also for several meetings.
Items of maintenance and construction included also included a new roof for the Shed, and considerable additions to the lavatory facilities at the Shed.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center

The Friends of the Berkshire Music Center continued its activities for the third season, the second under the National Chairmanship of Dr. Lewis Perry. The office in the Ticket Building at Tanglewood, in charge of Miss Mary Eliot, was open daily to receive memberships and contributions to the support of the Music Center. Members of the Friends were invited to the many student concerts of the Music Center, and were permitted to bring guests, who filled out guest cards and, in many cases, later became Friends themselves.

A total of 3851 persons joined the Friends by contributing a total of $20,449.13 to the support of the Music Center, an average contribution of $5.33 per member. This compares with total contributions of $23,540.91 in 1947 (average contribution about $8.00) and $13,285.93 in 1946. Against these may be charged direct expenses of $1076.75 in 1947 and $2,280.66 in 1948.

In addition, 69 works from the Boston Symphony Orchestra Library were required for the use of Departments I, II and IV as well as 42 compositions rented from publishers and commercial rental libraries.

F I N A N C I A L  S T A T E M E N T  O N  T A N G L E W O O D  O P E R A T I O N S  -  1 9 4 8 .

The following figures attempt to show expenditures and receipts in connection with the operations at Tanglewood compared with similar items in the 1946 and 1947 seasons. It is a cash statement in which no allowance is made for reserves on hand or amortization .

Expenditures and receipts for the Berkshire Music Center, Berkshire Festival, dormitories, the cafeteria, bookstore, Tanglewood maintenance and buildings are shown, since the operations at Tanglewood are so closely inter-related that a clear separation of Music Center and Festival is impossible .

To give an idea of the cost of the Music Center, over and above the Festival, however, the following figures are offered . In this case expenditures for the Music Center leave out dormitory and store costs (since they tend to be cancelled out by receipts) . Tanglewood construction and maintenance is not included . Similarly receipts shown are tuition only, omitting gifts, except tuition gifts for designated students:

|---|---|---|---|
| Expenditures | $76,404.48 | $72,622.63 | $94,769.78 |
| Revenues (tuition) | 41,820.00 | 42,710.00 | 42,565.00 |
| Net cost of Music Center | $34,584.48 | $29,912.63 | $52,204.78 |
| Percentage of expenditures covered by tuitions | 55% | 59% | 45% |

All figures in this report are taken from Mr. Brosnahan's statements, but are considerably rearranged .

The Baldwin Piano Company continued its extraordinary generosity in providing all the pianos used at Tanglewood:

|---|---|
| Baldwin ( grand ) | 12 |
| Acrosonic ( spinet ) | 41 |
| Hamilton ( upright ) | 12 |
| | 65 |
| Baldwin Electronic Organ | 1 |

These pianos were sent to Tanglewood, moved while there, and taken away without any charge to the Music Center . In addition, the Baldwin Piano Company maintained one of their concert tuners at Tanglewood throughout the season, and engaged the services of another local tuner, to keep the instruments in good condition . This very generous contribution is of the greatest importance and value to the operation of the Music Center .

Amount requested:

Your name has been given as a reference by the above-named student, who has applied for scholarship aid to attend the 1948 session of the Berkshire Music Center.

The Music Center is described briefly on the back of the enclosed folder. The tuition charge is $120 for the six week session, plus an extra fee of $20 for active participation in Conducting, Composition and Opera. Living costs for the session are estimated at an additional $200 - $225, exclusive of travel.

A limited number of Berkshire Music Center scholarships for tuition only are granted to students who best satisfy the requirements of good character, musical ability, and financial need. The purpose of the scholarship awards is to enable students who would otherwise be unable to do so to attend the Berkshire Music Center. Scholarships are not intended as prizes for musical excellence, and it is expected that applicants who are able to attend without financial assistance will not apply for aid.

The Berkshire Music Center is an approved place for education under the "G.I. Bill of Rights," and qualified veterans may apply to the Veterans Administration for financial aid. Ordinarily, therefore, scholarships are not granted to veterans.

It is our aim to distribute these awards intelligently and to those students who most need them. It will be greatly appreciated if you will assist us by commenting upon the applicant in the light of your knowledge of him and of the above scholarship requirements. Space for your comments will be found on the reverse side, and a stamped envelope for reply is enclosed.

Your remarks will of course be held confidential.

Faithfully yours,

Thomas D. Perry, Jr.

To All Recipients of Scholarship Aid:

Tuition scholarships for the Berkshire Music Center are drawn from a revolving fund set up with contributions by RCA Victor from the sale of its "Berkshire" model, introduced at Tanglewood in the summer of 1947. In order to continue this Fund and to insure that scholarship aid will be available to talented young musicians in future years, all recipients of scholarship aid from the Revolving Fund are asked to agree to contribute an amount equal to their scholarships at some time in the future when their circumstances permit them to do so. All scholarship students are requested to sign and return to this office the first copy of the enclosed form, keeping the second copy for their own records. This form is not a note or receipt for a loan - it is a statement of serious intention to help continue the RCA "Berkshire" Revolving Scholarship Fund.

THE BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER was initiated in 1940 by Serge Koussevitzky and founded by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Dr. Koussevitzky to provide an opportunity for music study in connection with the Berkshire Festival Concerts held annually by the Orchestra at Tanglewood. It is not a school for technical musical training, but rather a place where provision is made for the study of music on an advanced level through experience in group performance.

Dr. Koussevitzky has said, "What we want to give our students is constructive advice and a practical method which will stimulate their gifts, round out their abilities gained during their years of study, and broaden their acquaintance with music."

In 1946 the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center was established for those interested in the development of the school. A voluntary contribution to the support of the Center constitutes membership in the Society. Guest tickets to performances by students of the Center will be issued to Friends within the limits of seating capacities. Checks should be made payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc. and addressed to

The Berkshire Music Center

The Trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Music Director, Serge Koussevitzky, announce that the Sixth season of the Berkshire Music Center will be held during the summer of 1948 at Tanglewood, between Lenox and Stockbridge, Massachusetts. There will be a six-week session from July 5 to August 15 under the direction of Dr. Koussevitzky, with a Faculty of distinguished musicians including the principal players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The Berkshire Music Center was initiated in 1940 by Serge Koussevitzky and founded by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Dr. Koussevitzky to provide an opportunity for music study in connection with the Berkshire Festival Concerts held annually by the Orchestra at Tanglewood. It is not a school for technical musical training, but rather a place where provision is made for the study of music on an advanced level through experience in musical performance. No academic credit or certificate of achievement is given.

The courses of study at Tanglewood emphasize group performance. Students at the Music Center actively participate in orchestral, chamber music, choral, or operatic groups. Individual instruction is given only as it relates to group performance — coaching for chamber music and operatic roles, and sectional rehearsals for the orchestras. Dr. Koussevitzky has said, "Obviously we cannot hope to give fundamental courses and instruction on the same basis as they are introduced in conservatories, colleges and music schools. What we want to give our students is constructive advice and a practical method which will stimulate their gifts, round out their abilities gained during their years of study, and broaden their acquaintance with music."

All members of the Music Center are entitled to attend the concerts of the 1948 Berkshire Festival, many rehearsals for these concerts, a series of special guest chamber music concerts to be given at Tanglewood, and all student concerts and operatic performances.

The student body of the Berkshire Music Center is limited in number. In the first four Departments, auditions or interviews are usually required for active participants. In the fifth Department, applicants are considered on the basis of their general qualifications. Students must be 18 years of age or over.

The Five Departments

I. CONDUCTING

Orchestral Conducting — Serge Koussevitzky

Leonard Bernstein, assisted by Eleazar de Carvalho

A very small number of students will be accepted for active participation. A larger number will be admitted as auditors and will have the opportunity of being present at Dr. Koussevitzky's rehearsals with the active participants. They will also attend daily lectures and sessions in score analysis and conducting technique, as well as rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for the 1948 Berkshire Festival. In order to provide an opportunity for auditors to gain conducting experience, a practice orchestra will if possible be formed from the auditing division, to be rehearsed by members of the class in turn.

Choral Conducting — Hugh Ross and Robert Shaw

This course is a study of the technique and methods of choral conducting through actual practice. There will be two divisions, each limited in number: one under Mr. Ross and one under Mr. Shaw. Another group of properly qualified applicants will be accepted as auditors. Each active member will have opportunity to conduct various choruses which will be formed.

Operatic Conducting and Coaching — Boris Goldovsky

A limited number of coaches and conductors (pianists) will be accepted for study of various aspects of operatic conducting. For further particulars, see Department IV.

II. ORCHESTRA AND CHAMBER MUSIC

Orchestra — Serge Koussevitzky

Leonard Bernstein, assisted by Eleazar de Carvalho
and members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra

A full symphony orchestra for students who have acquired technical competence and who wish a greater experience in the art of orchestral playing. Each week the Orchestra will be assigned a few works chosen to give variety of style and period. Members will first have the opportunity to study the parts with the principal players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in sectional rehearsals. An orchestral concert will be given each week. Dr. Koussevitzky plans personally to rehearse and conduct at least one week; other rehearsals and performances will be under the direction of Dr. Koussevitzky's assistants and active students. Applicants for this Department are selected on the basis of auditions held during the spring of 1948.

Chamber Music — GREGOR PIATIGORSKY

Assisted by members of the BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

This activity is open to members of the Department II and Department IV Orchestras and a limited number of pianists, for special training in ensemble playing. New groups are formed weekly to study and perform works for strings, winds, piano and voice in various combinations. There is a weekly chamber music concert by the students.

Song Repertoire — RALPH BERKOWITZ

Song repertoire interpretation will be available to active singers in the Opera Department and pianists of Department II. The repertoire will consist of the great classic songs and song cycles as well as less-known works and ensemble pieces by representative composers.

III. COMPOSITION

AARON COPLAND
DARIUS MILHAUD

This Department offers individual instruction in advanced work for a limited number of exceptionally talented students, to be equally divided in number between the classes of Mr. Copland and Mr. Milhaud. The course is directed toward the student of postgraduate calibre whose previous technical studies have prepared him for work in the large forms. There will be one individual lesson of 1½ hours and two 2 hour classes weekly, or the equivalent. Students will be encouraged to take part in the performance of music by the various groups such as the Festival Chorus. In addition, there will be informal meetings of the Department to play and discuss the work of the composition students.

For admission, letters of recommendation are required from two former teachers or from two musicians of reputation. Those whose recommendations are acceptable may be asked to submit scores of one orchestral composition and one chamber work and, if possible, piano pieces and songs.

IV. OPERA

BORIS GOLDOVSKY

Assisted by RICHARD RYCHTARIK, Scenic Director; SARAH CALDWELL, LEO VAN WITSEN and FELIX WOLFES

Opera Dramatics for Singers

The chief aim of the summer's work will be the exploration of all paths consistent with dramatic truth and believable characterization in operatic performance. There will be a three-hour daily class devoted to the musical and dramatic realization of scenes from standard operas. At this time each singer will receive individual instruction in operatic acting and will benefit from a complete analysis and criticism of the present day methods of operatic mise en scène.

Members of the Opera Faculty will give a series of lectures on the technique of the stage, the principles of operatic dramaturgy, methods of study of score and text, Italian, French, German, and English diction, and other subjects dealing with the theory and practice of opera.

Active singers in the Opera Department, a selected group, will be chosen on the basis of auditions to be held during the spring of 1948. A larger number will be accepted as auditors in the Department.

Song Repertoire

For particulars, see Department II — Chamber Music.

Conducting, Coaching and Stage Directing

Great stress will be laid on independent collective efforts by student groups working on special projects. Each of these student groups will include the necessary number of singers, coaches, conductors, and stage directors, and will devote itself to selected projects, leading eventually to performance of scenes, acts, and complete operas. Admission to this activity will be on the basis of auditions or interviews.

Scenic Arts — Richard Rychtarik

Qualified students will be accepted on the basis of interviews to study scenic design, the construction and painting of scenery, and lighting.

Costuming — Leo Van Witsen

Mr. Van Witsen will give a course in the design and execution of theatrical costume to a selected group of qualified students.

Opera and Chamber Orchestra

This ensemble, numbering 25 to 30 players, will study the operatic repertoire under the direction of members of the Opera Faculty. It will perform at productions of the Opera Department. In addition several sessions each week will be devoted to the chamber orchestra repertoire under the supervision of Eleazar de Carvalho. Dr. Koussevitzky plans to conduct at least one of these sessions, while the remainder will be conducted by Mr. Carvalho and others. A chamber orchestra concert will be given. Members of this orchestra will take part in Department II Chamber Music.

Members of this ensemble will be selected by audition during the spring of 1948.

V. CHORAL SINGING — Hugh Ross, Robert Shaw
ORCHESTRAL PLAYING — Richard Burgin

This is the largest department of the Music Center. Its activities are designed for music students, college students, teachers, amateurs — for all who wish a summer of living and working in music. The principle activities of the Department are:

Festival Chorus, consisting of most of the students at the Music Center, will prepare major choral works under Mr. Ross and Mr. Shaw for performance with Dr. Koussevitzky, Mr. Shaw and the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 1948 Berkshire Festival.

Madrigal Group, a selected group under the direction of Hugh Ross, will study a cappella music and music with small instrumental ensembles in the Medieval and Renaissance styles.

Small Choir, a selected group, will work under the direction of Messrs. Ross and Shaw.

Orchestral Playing. The Department V Orchestra, less advanced than that of Department II, will have daily rehearsals under Richard Burgin of works from the symphonic repertoire. Performances of works for orchestra will be given under the supervision of Mr. Burgin. Boston Symphony Orchestra Faculty members will give sectional training and during the first half of the session will coach chamber music groups formed from members of the Department V Orchestra.

Additional Activities open to all Departments:

Seminar in very old and new music under the direction of Aaron Copland and Julius Herford. The purpose of the Seminar is to acquaint students with various phases of music with which they would not ordinarily be familiar. Most musical experience ranges from Palestrina to Stravinsky. On the assumption that it is important for the listener to broaden his experience, very old and very new music will be discussed and performed. Several sessions per week will be held for five weeks, each session devoted to a single topic, discussed by the lecturer and illustrated by performers from the student body.

Forum Meetings, with Mr. Copland as Moderator, will be held to discuss various aspects of music.

Harmonic Analysis, as related to musical form, under Irving Fine.

Solfège, under Katharine Wolff.

General Information

Application to the Berkshire Music Center should be made on the enclosed application form. Applicants will be notified of whatever auditions, interviews or further particulars may be required. Applicants for Conducting, Orchestra, Composition and Opera will receive supplementary application forms requesting more detailed information. Students cannot be accepted in more than one Department, or for less than the full six weeks' session.

Notification of acceptance or rejection of applications will be sent during the early part of May, 1948.

Registration will be held from July 1 to 4, inclusive, at Tanglewood.

Tuition Fee: $120. An extra fee of $20 is charged for Active Conducting, Orchestral or Choral; for Composition; and for Singers in Opera. A registration payment of $10 is due upon notification of acceptance. The balance of the tuition is payable in advance or at the time of registration.

Age Limit: 18 years or over.

Dormitory accommodations for single men or women (about 100 of each) are available in Lenox. Reservations for dormitory accommodations must be made in advance through the Music Center. Rates for the six-week session will be approximately $175 for lodging and two meals (breakfast and dinner) daily. The dormitory fee is payable in full either in advance or at the time of registration. The Music Center does not have accommodations for married students or families.

For a listing of hotel or guest house accommodations in the Berkshires other than the dormitories, please address the Berkshire Hills Conference, Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

Expenses for the session vary widely with the requirements of the individual. Minimum expenses including tuition are estimated at $325 to $350.

Private Instruction, either instrumental or vocal, is not a part of the course of study at the Music Center. Students wishing private lessons are requested to make individual arrangements with members of the Faculty after arrival at Tanglewood.

G. I. Bill: The Berkshire Music Center is an approved place for education under Public Laws 346 and 16, the so-called "G. I. Bill of Rights." Qualified veterans may apply through the Veterans Administration for financial assistance. Applicants who intend to enroll under the G. I. Bill must present their Certificates of Eligibility at registration.

Scholarships: A limited number of scholarship grants toward tuition are available for advanced students. These scholarships are in general restricted to students of orchestral conducting (active), orchestral instruments in Departments II and IV, composition and opera (active). No funds are available for dormitory and living expenses.

Scholarships are granted within the limit of the funds available to those who best satisfy the requirements of musical ability, financial need and good character. The purpose of the scholarship awards is to enable students who would otherwise be unable to do so to attend the Berkshire Music Center. Scholarships are not intended as prizes for musical excellence, and it is expected that applicants who are able to attend without financial assistance will not apply for aid.

The Friends of the Berkshire Music Center

is an organization of the several hundred persons who are interested in the Music Center and contribute financially to its support. Dr. Lewis Perry is National Chairman. Members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to many of the numerous orchestral, choral, chamber music, and operatic performances given by the Music Center. Each season there are approximately forty such performances, to which admission is by invitation only.

Contributions from the Friends are devoted to a general Scholarship Fund which is used to help deserving students. Added to the Scholarship Fund are the contributions of RCA-Victor from the sales of its "Berkshire" Model and gifts of other organizations and individuals.

A voluntary contribution to the support of the Music Center constitutes membership in the Friends. Contributions should be sent to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Massachusetts. (Between June 1 and August 20: Tanglewood – Lenox, Massachusetts.)

TANGLEWOOD

Tanglewood, whose extensive grounds were given to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was once the meeting place of Emerson, Holmes, and Melville. It was here that Hawthorne lived for a year, imagined his "Tanglewood Tales," and wrote "The House of the Seven Gables."

For the uses of the school there are the original house, the converted barn on the lake road, the large Shed where the Festival concerts are given, the Theatre-Concert Hall, the Chamber Music Hall, and a number of studio units, including a replica of Hawthorne's "Red Cottage."

The school library contains scores, books on music, and phonograph records. There is a music shop.

The spacious grounds, extending from West Street, Lenox, to the shore of Lake Mahkeenac in Stockbridge, with meadow land, gardens, and trees, are at the disposal of the students. There are facilities for swimming and boating on the lake and opportunities for riding, golf, tennis, excellent mountain walks and drives in the vicinity. Tanglewood is open for inspection throughout the year.

Please do not write in this space.
